Excerpt: . . . sheep with red stains on their backs- the regular Highland business; I tell you there is as much beauty in a wet road and a leafless elm as there is in all the Land o Cakes. I will not dispute it; certainly not with you, at least; and I will only permit myself to show a corner of the enthusiasm with which the scenery here has inspired me, by saying that never, till I came here, could I imagine anything so magnificent as the dead level of Lochaber Moss, spreading for miles like a carpet at the feet of the monarch of Scottish mountains, Ben Nevis. How is that for high I shudder to think what would happen to me a certain Miss Elspeth Dickson were looking over my shoulder now; I feel as Paolo must have felt when writing to Francesca. Miss Elspeth, be it known to you, is...
