Its outset is generally accepted to have begun around 1900, when Mirza Ebrahim Khan Akkas Bashi, the official photographer of Muzaffar al-Din Shah, shot the first Iranian documentary. As Richard Tapper states in his work, The New Iranian Cinema, both government and religious authorities sought to control the images to be shown publicly. Formal censorship began in the 1920s, when the imported films exhibiting women, sex and amusement dominated the Iranian market. In contrast to this permissive attitude, depicting the political or social reality critically in local productions was taboo. Until the Second World War nothing worthy of being called national cinema was produced. In these decades, Iranian films were...
