Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Case of the Mission Indians in Southern California: And the Action of the Indian Rights Association in Supporting the Defence of Their Legal Rights Helen Hunt Jackson died in San Francisco during the past summer, without seeing the fruition of her labors; but a few weeks before her death she gladly granted an interview to Prof. Painter, the agent of the Indian Rights Association at Washington. She greatly rejoiced at his visit, even at the moment when her long illness was fast approaching its fatal close, because she saw in him one who represented the better feeling of the nation toward that wronged and helpless race whom she had so greatly loved. Upon her deathbed she committed to the hands of the Indian Rights Association as a solemn legacy the redress of past wrongs, present sufferings, and the future hopes of the Mission Indians. Mrs. Jackson died in cheerful confidence that the Association would be faithful to the trust committed to it. With a sense of responsibility for the execution of this trust the...
