Keep short accounts with God, and long estrangements will become unknown. Nevertheless, it is true that, if a believer grievously falls, God, though He forgives at once upon confession, does not always see well to restore the soul immediately to an assured sense of pardon and favour. It may be that the hiding of God s face for a time is a needful discipline. Faith shall assuredly be rewarded, but, like the moon, it is the office of faith to rule the night, and the darkness of night may for a season be permitted to prevail as a chastisement for past folly. IV. One other point remains to be noticed; it is the responsibility entailed. The man that shall be unclean, and shall not purify himself, that soul shall be cut off from among the congregation, because he hath defiled the sanctuary...
