Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Annual Report of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society, 1897, Vol. 25 In submitting this list, with the very limited time at their disposal your committee wish to say that it is intended to be partial and preliminary only, hoping before the next annual meeting to be able to prepare one that may be more elaborate and so arranged as to give fuller information as to local adaptations. They would also suggest that too often in a sudden zeal for improvements the planter of ornamental trees and shrubs does his work carelessly and in haste and soon forgets to care for them, overlooking the fact that in this branch of horticulture, as truly as in the orchard and garden, intelligent cultivation is necessary to secure satisfactory results. In selecting from this list, the planter should use judgment to choose such varieties as may be especially adapted to the soil and climatic peculiarities of the locality in which they are to be used, and also of such size when mature and such habits of growth as to be appropriate to their surroundings. Your committee would also urge all those interested in such matters to carefully observe such trees and shrubs as may grow wild in their neighborhoods, hoping thereby to secure new and novel varieties which may be of value for ornamental planting. In the printing of this list, varieties which are native to the woodlands of this state are marked with a star, while those which by successful cultivation at Montevideo, Minn., have proved themselves adapted to withstand the severe climatic conditions of the prairie regions, are printed in italics. A few foot notes are also...
